How Your Money Is Used

Annual Dues and SRA Gifts:

These funds are used to pay for operating expenses. This includes two general programs (Sept. and June) where lunches are served, some expenses associated with the March Recognition Luncheon, and costs of the December Holiday Event offered jointly with the Retired Faculty Association and the Emeriti Center. These funds also offset expenses related to a variety of special events, and the online EC Newsletter, where costs are shared with the EC and the Retired Faculty Association. In addition, the SRA usually gives a modest annual gift to the Emeriti Center in recognition of the services the EC provides to the SRA – i.e. student worker and staff support.

SRA Endowment Fund:

Gifts to the Endowment, established in 2008, provide long-term support for the association. The SRA Endowment, whose capital cannot be spent, is administered as a sub-account of the USC Endowment with a very good rate of return. Each year a "spendable" amount earned can stay in the account to grow the endowment, or can be spent to support SRA activities. We hope to grow the endowment to a point where the "spendable" amount can make an ongoing significant contribution to the SRA budget, providing income to expand SRA services and programs for its members.
